

RiverPark Floating Rate CMBS Fund

(RCRIX/RCRFX)

Second Quarter 2021 Commentary – Slow & Steady

As we adjust to life after COVID, including travelling again and going back to the office, we are pleased to have a portfolio of assets that are thriving in the current environment. Our portfolio is now valued slightly above par value and is paying a monthly gross coupon of 2.7% (at the current one-month LIBOR rate of 0.09%). All of our investments are floating rate and, as a result, well positioned for inflation. Of note, the RiverPark Floating Rate CMBS Fund (the “Fund”) has been investing in Commercial Mortgage-Backed Securities (“CMBS”) for over a decade with only one down year (2020). Year-to-date, our returns are 2.5%.

Our portfolio consists of 20 investments, exclusively in the industrial, life sciences and apartment sectors, with an average loan-to-value ratio of 56% (the amount of our investment and all senior or same class debt divided by the property value) and a debt-service-coverage-ratio of nearly four times (property cash flow divided by property debt-service). Regarding the CMBS market overall, the new issue CMBS market is quite active and demand is strong across the board, particularly for seasoned and performing assets such as ours.

In summary, we own a high-quality portfolio of CMBS secured by large and diverse portfolios owned by many of the most highly capitalized real estate investors in the world, including Blackstone, Brookfield, Fortress and KKR. At quarter-end, our portfolio was secured by nearly 2,000 properties comprising nearly 400 million square feet in over 30 states.

We feel that our portfolio has never been better positioned and should deliver consistent, floating rate returns at an attractive spread to LIBOR for years to come. Based on our portfolio composition, the strength of our underlying assets and sponsors, and the floating-rate nature of our portfolio, our outlook for 2021 is simple: slow and steady.

Portfolio Composition and Characteristics

The greatest strengths of our portfolio are asset and sponsor quality. 100% of the Fund is comprised of three asset types: industrial, life sciences and apartments. These three asset classes are discussed below with a detailed asset-by-asset summary on the following page.

Industrial Assets (68% of portfolio). Industrial assets typically represent the backbone of distribution for retail and commercial goods in the US. The Fund's industrial assets are comprised of large and diversified portfolios of "last mile" warehouse and distribution properties used by such companies as Amazon and Wal-Mart. For example, our Blackstone XL distribution portfolio consists of 406 properties totaling 66 million square feet in 18 states. Within industrial, we also include cold storage assets and self-storage assets.

Life-Sciences Assets (18% of portfolio). Life-Sciences assets are highly specialized modern buildings that are built for biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies to develop and create new drugs such as for COVID and Cancer. These properties are typically located in close proximity to major universities and have specialty features including high-energy capacity, sterile laboratories, and typically higher than normal ceiling heights. These properties tend to be fully leased to leading pharma and biotech companies under long-term leases.

Multi-Family Apartments (14% of portfolio). The Fund's multi-family apartment assets are comprised of portfolios of ten or more apartment complexes, typically with 100 or more units per complex.

Regarding our loan sponsors, the Fund's CMBS investments are owned by many of the country's leading institutional real estate investors with decades of experience and substantial capital. Our loan sponsors include Blackstone, Brookfield, Fortress, KKR, and Lineage Logistics, among others. Our investments benefit not only from our sponsor experience but also from their significant equity in each transaction.

Conclusion and Looking Ahead

Despite COVID being substantially in the rear-view mirror, we believe that the knock-on effects from the pandemic have fundamentally changed the outlook and performance characteristics of certain property types such as retail, hotel and office. We therefore took the opportunity last year to reposition our portfolio out of those kinds of assets and into assets that are thriving post pandemic: industrial, life sciences, and apartments. We believe that this kind of a portfolio should experience lower volatility and generate, as the Fund has done historically, steady and predictable monthly dividends in a floating-rate inflation hedged investment. We are seeing numerous opportunities that fulfill these criteria and are excited about the path forward in the new normal. As a reminder, management of the Fund continues to be a major investor in the strategy.

Investing involves risk including possible loss of principal. Bonds and bond funds are subject to credit risk, default risk and interest rate risk and may decline in value as interest rates rise. High yield bonds involve greater risks of default or downgrade and are more volatile than investment grade securities, due to the speculative nature of their investments. CMBS are not backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. government and are subject to risk of default on the underlying mortgages. Securities backed by commercial real estate assets are subject to risks similar to those of direct ownership of commercial real estate loans including, but not limited to, declines in the value of real estate, declines in rental or occupancy rates and risks related to general and local economic conditions. There can be no assurance that the Fund will achieve its stated objectives. The Fund is not diversified. The value of the collateral securing CMBS can decline, be insufficient to meet the obligations of the borrower, or be difficult to liquidate. As a result, CMBS may not be fully collateralized and may decline significantly in value.
